

Methods and systems for accessing email from a printing-capable device via a network connection to a mail server. A user interface is provided at the printing-capable device which enables a user to retrieve email headers from a mail server, to select an email header and to retrieve an email message that corresponds to the selected email header. The printer-capable device then prints the email message.